WHO WE ARE

NextPhase™ is a leading low- to medium-volume outsource partner for complex electromechanical and disposable medical devices in North America. We have the resources & expertise to support development, manufacturing & assembly needs.

Our LEAN focused manufacturing and operational systems throughout the US and Mexico provide our customers with consistent cost savings across the product life-cycle. We are ISO 13485 certified, have class 7 & 8 cleanrooms, and are FDA registered.

Design Services

NextPhase design engineers have extensive experience in the development, validation, and transfer to manufacturing of Class II and III medical devices. We develop conceptual and detailed designs that ensure product functionality by drawing on our vast experience. We help you bring your device to market by documenting our comprehensive and compliant design engineering process and arming you with the materials you need to navigate your regulatory path. Our engineers can design anything from a single component to the entire medical devices and associated consumables.

Single-Use Devices

NextPhase is your one-stop contract manufacturing partner for a wide variety of Class II and III single-use medical devices. We have the experience, expertise, and capabilities to produce complex medical devices. Our customer support teams are dedicated to your product's success and deliver a speed-to-market advantage.

Electromechanical Devices and Active Implantables

NextPhase is a turnkey, U.S.-based, and FDA-complaint EMD capital equipment medical device manufacturer for your entire product life-cycle. We have a proven track record of decreasing manufacturing costs by expediting production timelines while holding to the highest standards of quality. Our robust quality systems have earned a strong reputation with some of the largest names in the medical device industry. We understand the unique standards and requirements of all Class II and III medical devices.

After Market Services

Our after-market services include customer service phone support, product warranty service, product repairs, spare parts management, trending data analysis, and sustaining engineering.
